The Chunghyeon Museum is a museum oriented around Lee Won-ik (1547-1634), who served as a minister six times during the mid-Joseon Dynasty. He served in public office for more than 60 years and devoted himself to the country in the midst of national unrest. King Injo lowered the house called Gwangamdang and made the people take a leaf out of his book. The Chunghyeon Museum is a cultural facility representing Gwangmyeong City, where a range of relics are preserved, such as Lee Won-ik's portrait, Ori Yeong-woo, and the head house, where descendants lived.

🕒 March-October: 09:00 ~ 18:00 / November-February: 09:00 ~ 17:00

※ Closed on Mondays excluding public holidays

Dokgae Bridge at Imjin River is a bridge that reproduces the shape of a pre-war iron bridge with a length of 105m and a width of 5m using piers destroyed by bombing during the Korean War. It is a footbridge made for tourism, for the visitors to recount the scars of war and the preciousness of peace. The Bunker Exhibition Hall is an art experience space reconstructed from an underground bunker used as a military facility, where you can watch DMZ-related video materials and experience-oriented media art.
