Explore Gyeonggi-do Province's Cultural Heritage

Memories of History

The themed itinerary below covers significant cultural heritage sites within Gyeonggi-do Province.

The sites presented below are closely related to major figures and events from the Joseon period.

Gyeonggi-do Province has been a crucial juncture in Korean history as the region surrounds Seoul, the capital city of Korea for 600 years, starting in the Joseon period. Therefore, it bears myriads of cultural heritage sites with rich historical backgrounds. Let us explore cultural heritage sites in Gyeonggi-do Province that offer a distinct draw, compared to palaces in Seoul. Fortresses and walls to defend the capital and royal tombs encompassed by the wood are a uniquely special experience that only Gyeonggi-do Province can offer.

Namhansanseong Fortress

Get off at Sanseong Station (subway Line 8) and take Bus 9-1 ▶ Get off at Namhansanseong Fortress

"The mountain fortress that protected the capital"

Namhansanseong Fortress is a mountain fortress that protected Hanyang, the capital city, along with Bukhansanseong Fortress. Today, the East, West, and South gates, defense facilities, ammun (hidden gates), wells, a government office, and a military training facility remain. Recognized for its historical and cultural value, it was registered as World Cultural Heritage Site in 2014. If a visitor wears a Hanbok to visit the site, parking fee is waived! So why not take a stroll on the pathway next to the wall while wearing a Hanbok? Namhansanseong Fortress is also famous for its bicycle trails.

The Museum of Silhak (Dasan Heritage Site)

- Free admission

"Silhak" is an innovative and practical philosophy that emerged during the late Joseon period in the 18th century. It especially differs from conventional Confucious philosophy as it focuses on economic and scientific developments. There are a lot of historical sites in Gyeonggi-do Providence that are tied to the advent of silhak, being the location of the origin of the philosophy. One of the representative sites is the historical site of the remains of Dasan Jeong Yagyong in Namyangju. There is a museum that offers more detailed information.

Yungneung and Geolleung Royal Tombs is home to the tombs of King Jeongjo of Joseon (1752-1776), the 22nd monarch of the Joseon period, and his queen consort, as well as Prince Sado and his consort. Prince Sado was a tragic figure-while he was the Crown Prince, he was killed by his father, King Yeongjo of Joseon, the 21st King of the period amidst power struggles within the court. Even King Jeongjo was a good king who led the height of the nation; he was always burdened by his father's death and felt indebted to him. Because of this, he wished to be buried alongside his father after his passing.

"From being weapons of war to becoming a rest area for citizens"

Unbong LST 671 was built in 1944 and served as a landing craft for the Republic of Korea Navy for more than 60 years before decommissioning in 2006. The Naval Headquarters donated the vessel to Gimpo City after modifying it into a venue for comprehensive cultural experience instead of scuttling the ship, and Gimpo Marine Park came into being. Seeing a warship that used to be on the front lines of combat become a rest area for the citizens sparks more earnest expectations for the age of peace.

Ceramic ware in Gyeonggi-do Province

Ceramic Road

This itinerary covers most of the significant locations in Gyeonggi-do Province that are related to ceramic ware.

Visitors may enjoy a variety of exhibits and experiences related to the ceramics culture of Korea.

Gyeonggi-do Province is a region known for its ceramic ware tradition. The renowned Goryeo Celadon began in Siheung and Yongin. Kilns for white porcelain, which Joseon's royal family used, were based in Gyeonggi-do Province. Various literature from the period introduces specialty porcelain products from all around the province.

Gyeonggi-do Province's ceramic wares are not only relics from the past, but they are also products of the future. Korean International Ceramic Biennale, which began in 2001, has staked its position as a world-class culture and art festival. Each region has been successfully operating ceramic experience programs and ceramic ware industries. Let us check out Gyeonggi-do Province's porcelain, which has been reborn as "luxury" throughout its 1,000 years of tradition.

Gyeonggi Forests

This itinerary is for those who want to experience various arboretums and recreational forests that offer their own unique characteristics. Let us choose where to visit—the vast woods, a tropical greenhouse, or a themed garden.

Forests often heal one's body and mind, but it is difficult to have a forest-bathing experience within the city. In that sense, botanical gardens located in parts of Gyeonggi-do Province provides us with the room to breathe. Centered around Korea National Arboretum, originated from the royal forest during the Joseon period, many botanical gardens boast unique characteristics and are waiting for visitors. Let us feel the joy of walking through nature in Gyeonggi-do Province.

"From a royal forest, into the citizens' forest"

Gwangreungsup Forest, in which the Korea National Arboretum is located, was a favorite hunting ground of King Sejo of Joseon, the 7th king of the Joseon period. Later, as King Sejo's tomb is located in the forest, the royal family strictly secluded the forest from the outside. Korea National Arboretum was established to protect and perform research on Gwangreung Forest, which holds utmost ecological significance as has been being preserved for the past 540 years. The arboretum consists of a Special Exhibition Hall, Forestry Museum, Exhibition Hall for Specimen of Forest Organisms, Forest Animal Conservation Institute, Temperate Greenhouse, and Tropical Plant Resource Research Center.

Gyeonggi New-Tro

This section covers premier destinations in Gyeonggi-do Province in which visitors can experience a sense of "retro."

These attractions boast an antiquity that feels strange and new, something to be stored in your memories and photo galleries!

"New-Tro" is what several trend analysts have picked as a new tide of trends in Korea. What is so special about the direction of retro, which comes back in style from time to time? New-tro means that the current youth feel a retrospective sense that they have never experienced, as an even fresher stimulant. It is differentiated from ordinary retro trends, which spark nostalgia in general. Gyeonggi-do Province is filled with "New-tro" spaces, that create a "New Past" and through which people have passed without noticing—a strange feeling alongside familiarity. Let us take the journey to a past that we have never encountered before.

Diving into K-pop, K-movies, and K-dramas

Gyeonggi K-Place

This section covers a variety of filming spots for dramas, reality shows, and photoshoots. There are places in Western Gyeonggi-do Province and Eastern Gyeonggi-do Province. Let us find the spots that are convenient to get to.

K-pop and K-dramas have captured the attention of not only Korean audiences, but also countless fans around the globe. Their attractiveness comes from the fine line between reality and fantasy. Rather than creating distance between the stars and the audience, K-pop and K-dramas create a sense of closeness between the two, making us feel as if those celebrities would somehow magically appear in our daily routine.

As a place that is closer to the lives of the people in the city, Gyeonggi-do Province has been a favored spot for creating K-culture, which displays fantasy connected to reality. Let us dive into your dreams and check out these filming locations!

Gyeonggi's ribs

This section introduces a gourmet itinerary through which you can experience the rib dishes that Gyeonggi-do Province has to offer, including Suwon Wanggalbi, Pocheon Idong Galbi, and Yangju Hanu Galbi. While checking out these restaurants, do not miss out on the other attractions that Gyeonggi-do Province has to offer in the area!

Gyeonggi-do Province has been a crucial juncture in the history of Korea's rib dishes. The beef market stood in Suwon as the Hwaseong Fortress, Suwon starting becoming a new town during the late Joseon period. The development of rib dishes then followed. Even though the beef market disappeared long ago, the ribs of Suwon are still a famous Korean dish today.

Suwon is not the only place that is famous for its rib dishes. Other areas began taking their positions as the epicenters of Gyeonggi-do Province's flavors, such as the Idong Galbi from Pocheon that spread nationwide, grilled short rib patties from Dongducheon that came into being since liberation, and Korean beef raised in Yangju, which was the hometown of the righteous outlaw Imkkeokjeong. Let us take a gourmet journey to enjoy the ribs of Gyeonggi-do Province.

"Suwon Wanggalbi, taste fit for a king"

Suwon was home to a bustling beef market during the Joseon period. While Suwon's beef market, which was passed down for centuries, closed down in 1940, Suwon's ribs continued to live on for generations. Originally, Suwon ribs were served in hangover soup, but they gradually transformed into the charcoal-grilled marinated ribs that initiated the history of Suwon Wanggalbi. Not only the marinated grilled ribs, but also the ordinary ribs seasoned with the clean taste of salt are excellent.

Suwon Chicken Street

“Until a small yeast frame becomes a museum”

Sansawon, the Sool Gallery, contains a collection of equipment that was historically used to create traditional liquors, including a medicine press, yeast frame, yongsu (traditional filter), gyeonbogari (two-tiered jar used for fermentation), and sojugori (traditional distiller), as well as over 1,000 pieces of literature related to the traditional brewing and distilling of alcoholic beverages. Visitors can taste spirits that have been freshly distilled at Sansawon Winery during a demonstration of the three-step distilling process. Visitors can also experience making traditional Korean liquor firsthand in the Gayanju (homebrewed liquor) Classroom.

“One of the three best liquors in Joseon”

Gamhongro is known as one of the three best traditional liquores along with Igangju of Jeonju and Jukryukgo of Jeongeup. It is made by distilling liquor made from rice and infusing Korean medicinal herbs. Therefore, it presents a smooth flavor, even with a 40% alcohol content. Originally, Gamhongro was a traditional liquor of North Korean regions, but the distillery moved to the south amidst confusion from the war, and then positioned itself in the Paju region.

Gyeonggi's Makgeolli

Let us take a look at a few makgeolli (rice wine) breweries that offer great tourist experiences.

We recommend checking out these other regional attractions located near each brewery.

One of the unique charms of makgeolli (rice wine), which drinkers can even find nowadays, is the regional brands that offer different specialties and characteristics. Of course, there are several makgeolli breweries in Gyeonggi-do Province that proudly represent their hometowns. It is notable that most breweries offer tour and experience programs for curious visitors. You may be surprised at how much makgeolli breweries have changed and become trendy, boasting lobbies that are decorated like small cafes or bottles that are beautifully and carefully designed.

Gyeonggi's Traditional Markets

This itinerary covers the charming traditional markets around Gyeonggi-do Province.

We chose markets that especially present expertise and experience that cannot be found elsewhere.

Traditional markets that can be found everywhere around Gyeonggi-do Province have unique characteristics and charms of their own to offer visitors. From Moran Market that is bustling like a festival every 5 days, maintaining the tradition of the market from the old days; Nammun Market, Suwon, which was founded by King Jeongjo more than 2 centuries ago and eventually became the heart of Suwon by unifying 9 nearby markets; to Osan Osaek Market, which captures the tastes of the youth by consolidating craft beers and night markets, let us take a look around the featured traditional markets of Gyeonggi-do Province.

“The market filled with the warmth of the people;
connecting the lineage of traditional markets”

Moran Market opens every 5 days (the days ending in 4 and 9), which is a rare practice for a market in the capital region. Primary products traded in the market are agricultural products, meat, and health supplements. Just like the old days, traders display living chickens, ducks, hares, and other animals out in the open to sell them, which is one of unique characteristics of Moran Market, Seongnam.

"The market founded by a king, containing 220 years of history"

Nammun Market, Suwon with its 220-year history, is known as the only market in Korean history that was organized by a monarch. King Jeongjo of Joseon summoned merchants from three southern provinces and Seoul to create a new market in Suwon after granting the right to distribute ginseng and gat (traditional Korea hat), emphasizing the significance of an active economy.

Currently, Nammun Market, Suwon boasts the largest size in Korea, in affiliation with nine markets around the region. From Gucheon-dong Tool Market, Nammun Gate Rodeo Market, Nammun Gate Fashion 1st Street, and Citizen's Markets that specialize in clothing items, Young-dong Traditional Market that deals with hanbok, and Paldal Global Market that is famous for its Fried Chicken Street, all participating markets have their own personality.
